Enough Vaccine To Be Available Within 30 Days

WASHINGTON, May 31 (A) -President Eisenhower said today the first phase of the antipolio campaign—double inoculation of all first and second graders-"certainly" will be completed before the infantile paralysis season reaches its peak in August.

Enough Salk vaccine will be manufactured within the next 30 days to do the job, he announced at his news conference. Within 60 days, the President added, he has the assurance of Surgeon Gen. Long-Awaited Ruling Seen Delaying School Integration In South

WASHINGTON, May 31 (A)-The Supreme Court today handed state and local officials first responsibility for finding ways to end all racial segregation in public schools "as soon as practicable."

The court fixed no deadline and ordered no specific national procedure for the historic and delicate But it directed federal district courts to see that the process starts promptly and continues with reasonable speed, giving full weight to varying local conditions and obstacles. Reaction to the unamimous ruling was almost startlingly diverse. Southern foes of racially mixed schools said the decision meant an almost indefinite delay in integration. Negro leaders said the decision paves the way for largely

Over the years there has come into being what amounts virtually to a special Cadillac vocabulary.

Certain words and phrases have so long and so often been used in association with Cadillac that they almost automatically call the car to mind.

When the talk is or motor cars, who can hear the word "prestige" without thinking of Cadillac?

It is likewise true of "distinction" . . . of "luxury" ... of "pride of ownership" ... of "satisfaction" ... of "comfort" . . . of "long life and dependability" . . . of "beauty"... of "impressiveness"... of "value"-and of dozens of other words used to denote superiority.

In a sense, these are Cadillac words—and they actually sound strange when employed in any other connection. Even when used in the promotion of another automobile, they still suggest the "car of cars".

Naturally, words like these can become inseparable only from a product which deserves them. In the TN A land vehicle, there's never been any-I thing like the magic a pilot gets with his variable pitch propellers.

He can angle the blades of his propellers for performance as he heads his plane down a runway - to get quick take-off and climb. He can switch the angle of those propellers for economy aloft-to get more mileage from the fuel in his tanks.

As we said-there's never been anything like that in a land vehicle. But there is now. It's in a Buick with Variable Pitch Dynaflow -and you can take the word of thousands of excited owners of new Buicks that it's the closest thing to wheeled flight ...

Because you have twenty propeller-like blades

News And People Marked His Life

A long and effective career as a newspaperman and civic leader has come to an end with the death of Rudolph Nickel.

The dean of newspapermen in Allegany County, Mr. Nickel for some 40 years was correspondent and Frostburg office manager for the old Cumberland Daily News and its successor, The Cumberland News.

He worked at his job with a diligence and responsibility that were not dimmed with the passing of time and won the respect of all those thousands of people with whom he came in contact in his daily task of collecting and writing the news.

But Rudy Nickel's responsibilities did not end with being a newspaperman. He was keenly interested in the welfare of his community, his county and

He served his country in Europe during World War I and on his return to Frostburg helped organize and became first commander of the American Legion

Mr. Nickel also was elected to the House of Delegates from Allegany County, at one time being minority floor leader, and either supported or sponsored legislation beneficial to the Frostburg State Normal School, a new charter for Frostburg and other measures of importance to Allegany County. He was tremendously interested in woman's suffrage and espoused that cause with vigor until after it became law.

Some years ago Mr. Nickel was secretary and responsible in great measure for the success of the Frostburg centennial and homecoming celebration. He was active in civic and fraternal organizations, was a director of the Fidelity Savings Bank of Frostburg and in recent years worked hard at revitalizing the Frostburg Memorial Park where he was buried yes-

We recite all of this to give some insight to the widespread interests that marked Mr. Nickel's life.

These Days

As Safe As The Bank

LONDON-There are no laws governing banking in Great Britain. There is not a single act defining what a bank is or what it should do or how it should be operated. British banks do a world-wide banking business without anything like our Federal Reserve System or our state banking laws. The Bank of England is chartered to do certain specific things and a few of the older banks have charters which give them privileges but place no particular restrictions upon them. The Bank of England issues the nation's currency.

There are no banking departments with hordes of inspectors to go over everybody's accounts to see that the bank is properly managed. No authority exists which can prevent a person from heading a banking firm. There are no little people prying into big affairs which are too enormous for their imagination. There are no office-weary counsel to banking departments who badger bank managers to conform to their small ideas as in our country. Here it is all done on the basis of a kind of cooperative confidence. Besides, if a man makes good he might get a title which is worth more than money.

So I asked what do they do if a bank gets shaky. I was told that they would hear about it in the Bank of England or in the Treasury and that sound men would get together to straighten things out. The bank would undoubtedly be rescued, if it could be, and there would be a change of management. But it would all be voluntary without force, without inspection, without a horde

It is the same with a business firm. The controls which we, in the United States, feel are absolutely necessary to keep men honest, do not exist here at all. The British, in that sense, avoid weakening their democratic processes by passing so much legislation that freedom is forgotten. The rule here seems to be that anyone can think of a new law but is it necessary? And if there is no necessity for it, the law is not passed.

I asked what would happen if a bank fell into the hands of a crook, and the answer was that if a man were really a crook he would have to show his hand and after that there would be nothing for him to do but to get out.

About 74 per cent of the world's gold supply is mined in countries within the British Commonwealth, principally South Africa. Therefore, the gold market is now an open one in London, although the Gold Exchange is little more than a committee meeting. Nevertheless, it is an open market and gold is dealt in. The United States, with the largest hoard of gold in all the world, still does not permit trading in gold. It is hoarded at Fort Knox.

No one here seriously advocates, however, the return to the gold standard. It would be altogether impossible unless the United States returned to the gold standard first and there is no sign of that. In such a matter the British would have to follow us. Nevertheless they have stabilized the pound down to the New York-London cross-rate of $2.80 to the pound and it stays there with no fluctuation. It is not likely that the position of the pound will improve or that any effort will be made to improve it. Nobody is in a hurry about that.

It is easier to understand the attitude of the British toward international affairs when one realizes that they have a voluntary but cooperative society. A business man pursues his own judgment with fewer restrictions here than in the United States. It is for this reason that so many Britishers believe that ultimately American firms will organize an increasing number of British companies through which to operate their export trade. They have groups of businesses here that operate together and some of our American-owned British companies may find ways of doing business that way. As one rides on the roads, a great many American-owned manufacturing plants are passed which already make their goods in England, not only for British consumption but for world trade. It is believed here that this trend will not only continue but will be accelerated as world trade becomes more free.

What defeated the Highway Bill in the Senate was the desertion of a few GOP Senators who, though Republican in name, usually are as much for Ike as Byrd of Virginia and Holland of Florida are for the Democrats.

When the Highway Bill goes to the House, however, ex-Speaker Joe Martin and Charley Halleck of Indiana plan to keep all of the GOP membership in line. They also expect to pick up some Democratic votes, such as Charley Buckley of New York and Jack Dempsey of New Mexico. (Jack sells road tars to highways.)

It's a paradoxical twist of political fate, incidentally, that some of the Republicans who deserted Ike on the Highway Bill are among those he went out of his way to help re-elect.

Senator Jenner, of Indiana, for instance, faced possible defeat at the hands of popular ex-Governor Schricker of Indiana back in 1952, and Ike wasn't at all anxious to go to Indiana to help, for Jenner had branded Ike's boss, Gen. George Marshal, as the spokesman for traitors. Nevertheless, Ike went to Indianapolis anyway, posed for the newsreel cameras in chummy juxtaposition with Jenner and Jenner was elected.

Now the man Ike helped walks out on Ike on vital issues.

held prisoner. The Indian diplomats are acting under instructions from Prime Minister Nehru who wants to convince Red China such a move would help ease tensions in the Far East. Nehru believes the Reds want to turn the American fliers loose but are afraid the move might be interpreted as a sign Red China is caving in to American pressure. Thus, diplomats have been sounding out key Americans privately. They are being told that far from being regarded as a sign of weakness, the release of the fliers would be looked upon as a conciliatory move by the Chinese which would improve relations with the United States.

On Juvenile Delinquency

By Bob Considine

NEW YORK, May 31 (INS) - The Princeton Research Service. whole juvenile delinquency problem is coming right back to its distressing source: the breakdown of discipline in the American family. Divorce, separation, mothers who must or insist on working. and the slow decline of the importance of the father in the household have all combined to bring about a situation that some sociologists now regard as more of a menace to the U.S. than communism.

Big game photographer Lewis Cotlaw is asked in the current issue of Sports Illustrated what gives him his biggest fright. He replied that while he is fairly at ease with murderous Mau Maus, a charging rhinocerous or a wounded lion, he gets quite terrified if he must walk through Central Park, in the heart of New York City, after dark. That's perhaps an extreme case, but I know dozens of New Yorkers who feel about the same. At least it illuminates the inability of most big city police forces to cope with the rising tide of juvenile mobs. Rocky Graziano, who once was the prototype of the youthful juvenile criminal, and who has since become a fine husband, father and citizen, dramatized the position of the parent in juvenile delinquency recently when he recommended that parents of young criminals be given heavy fines and suspended jail sentences. Rocky's words, phrased in the slanguage of the lower East Side, inspired a number of lofty editorials. There was agreement on all sides, editorially, but no law-making body has come forward to nod in assent.

Judge Sam Leibowitz, who has had to send so many of them to prison, has commented recently on the astonishing drop in the age of criminals who appear before him. A generation ago an accomplished burglar or brawler — or murderer - would most always be a hardened man in his forties or fifties. Today, the judge comments, the age is closer to 16.

Slowly but surely the blame for one of the better polls, took up State and came to the conclusion that the matter could be helped by four steps: better recreational and social activities of children after school hours; stricter parents; more knowledge on the part of parents as to just where their children are spending their time outside the house; and more home activities on the part of parents and children.

I was suprised at one part of the Princton poll. Very few people who were questioned by the reporters mentioned anything about the need for more religious training and greater church and synagogue attendance. An incredible oversight, yet all a part, I'm afraid, of the nucleus of the tragedy, the lax or broken home.

A couple of weeks ago, Gene Symonds, foreign correspondent for the United Press, was pulled from his taxicab during a riot of Chinese communists youths in Singapore and beaten so pittilessly that he died the following day. I was present the other day when Gene's name was added to the 82 other correspondents whose memory is enshrined at the Overseas Press Club's Memorial Press Center. Symonds is now one with Ernie Pyle, Ray Clapper, Jack Singer, Bob Capa and all the others who have laid down their lives while gathering news in hostile

Moles are common and usually are harmless. They come in different sizes, shapes, and textures and are found chiefly on face, neck, and back. The majority are visible at birth although the dot may be so tiny as to escape notice. But the lesions get larger as the child grows and, after a few years, tend to remain stationary.

A word of caution: Inadequate or unskilled removal may be more disastrous than letting the mole alone. Typical agents, such as nitric acid or caustic potash, may serve as an irritant and - instead of killing the cells — will stimulate growth. The same can be said of the improper use of the cautery

JOUAM Honors Dead

Frostburg Memorial Park. Kneeling is John F. Fatkin, state vice counselor; left to right, Charles F. Engle, John Timmons, Aaron Bean, national representative, and Arthur S. Meek. The JOUAM, owners of a plot of ground in the Memorial Park, place a flag on the grave of Christian Eisel, who was interred there December 6, 1890. The custom of placing flags on graves prior to Memorial Day has been an annual ritual for the past 65 years. There are approximately 225 flags placed each year by various groups of the JOUAM on graves in cemeteries throughout the county.

It is obviously better to miss an .occasional game by refusing to give questionable raises than to reach many game contracts for which there is only a remote play, or none at all.

South was right in carrying on to game with his 17-point, welldistributed hand, when North gave him the raise, but the result was not favorable. Even though the spade suit broke 3-3, giving South four tricks (where a less favorable break would have given him only three), and even though a heart was led up-to South's major tenace, the contract simply could not be fulfilled against tight defense. So, instead of collecting a valuable partial, North-South paid out 100 points.

Assistant At Citadel To Enter S. A. College

Candidate Richard L. Smith, assistant at the Salvation Army Citadel, will enter the Salvation Army Training College, Atlanta, Ga.,

September 7. A native of Canton, Ohio, Candidate Smith has been stationed in Cumberland for about a year. He served for nine months in the South Cumberland Corps and for the past four months has been assistant in charge of youth activities at the Citadel. Capt. Daniel Biggs, commander, said Smith will continue in his present duties until he begins officers

Plan To Boost Water Supplies To Be Studied

Engineering Staff Is Preparing Data

A preliminary study being made by the City Engineering Department toward an additional source of water supply is progressing, William J. Edwards, commissioner of water and electric light, reported vesterday.

The study has progressed to the point where some definite conclucan be arrived at, he added.

Commissioner Edwards said arrangements are being made for a joint meeting of the directors of the Evitts Creek Water Company and of the Engineering Depart-

Results of the study to date, he said, will be reviewed at the meeting to be held soon in the office of Mayor Roy W. Eves.

The meeting is expected to result in a decision on the next step to be taken toward the project, which could be to complete the study to the point where it would be known what land might be needed, and to arrange for test borings for a third

Informed sources said preliminary results of the study of the Evitts Creek watershed seem to indicate it may be the logical place to locate the third dam.

For several years, city officials have been studying the possibilities of increasing the city's water

Suggestions include a third dam water from Town Creek, the Potomac River or the Savage River Dam

The last two sources would require a second filtration plant.
